

1. What is the output of \dt?

- A table of tables titled "List of relations"
- The first 5 tables are actor, address, category, city, and country

2. What is the schema for customer table?

- There is 10 columns of varying data types
- The column names and data types are:
 - customer_id (int)
 - store_id (char)
 - first_name (char)
 - last_name (char)
 - email (char)
 - address_id (int)
 - activebool (boolean)
 - create_date (date)
 - last_update (timestamp)
 - active (int)

3. What similarities do you see in the explain plans for these 3 queries?

- All three query plans use a sequential scan
- Query 2 and 3 have the same total estimated cost (0.00..420.63)

4. What is the difference between the plans for the partitioned table and the union query? Why do you think this difference exists?

- The union query has two HashAggregate action; the partition query has one
- My best guess is that union query has two temporary tables that it has to join
- In contrast, the partition is not joining two tables, it just has to separate one temporary table (thus one HashAggregate)

5. What join algorithm is used for the inner join?

- Looks like it's using "Hash Join"

- From what I've read online, Hash Join is a type of inner join that implements a nested loop
